

Project Request

Relevance is central to the MET Professional Academy learning model. Our students solve real problems utilizing industry standard tools while being mentored by instructors and industry professionals, leading to real contributions in the professional arena. To support that learning model, we are always looking for challenging projects that will train our students in key skills for employability.

Do you have a project that has languished as the 10th item on your to-do list? If so, send it our way. Or are you an early-stage enterprise in need of support? The MET can provide your solution at no charge.

Let MET know what needs you have, and we will work to match you with qualified students. Our students will be guided by instructors and mentors, but you will be the client. Companies for whom services are provided will need to be available to meet with students periodically through video conferencing or in person regarding progress and provide feedback after project completion.

Currently the MET is offering project support in the following areas:

- CAD Design using SolidWorks
- Computer Integrated Manufacturing including 3D printing & laser engraving
- Electronics including circuit boards, component assembly, testing & trouble shooting
- UX, IX onboarding
- App testing and documentation
- Simple software/engineering in various languages
- Simple back-end and/or database applications
- Creation of content/support documentation
- Social media plan, design and development (spring 2020)
- Creative services – graphic design (spring 2020)
- Culture microorganisms (spring 2020)
- DNA manipulation (spring 2020)
- Experimental design & data collection within the medical community
